Brief description:

Each of the two volumes begins with excerpts from letters by the farmer Catalino, written from 1987 - 1994. Volume one tells of the hardships of farm life and the devastating effects of a hurricane. The images show daily life on the fields and in the small town Tekit.

Volume two concerns the days of fiesta, the waiting for it in the letters and the mix of cultural identification in the photographs of processions, dance and bullfight.

The semi-transparent pages with Köhler's photographs were printed in the darkroom on the gelatine-coated japanese paper made by the photographer himself. Design, selection, coating and photographic printing, Clemens-Tobias Lange. This book is a trade-edition of the artists' book MEXICO, published 2000 by EDIZIONI CTL.
